

Name	PIETRA PARCELLARA
Location	travo
Address	Pietra Parcellara
Description	An ophiolitic outcrop, classified as igneous rock, it overlooks the Trebbia Valley: this valley offers an extremely rich concentration of such structures, with no comparison in any other place in the Apennines. Its steep profile and the inclination to shatter into fragments make it resemble a dolomitic complex, though there's no geological connection between the two. From its top it is possible to enjoy a suggestive view of the whole valley. A small sanctuary lies at its foot.
How to get there	27 km far from Piacenza. Once in Travo, go ahead towards Bobbiano and then follow the indications for Pietra Parcellara.
